

Shooting sales and market share upwards in an ultra-competitive industry

In a very competitive market, our brief was to drive market share growth across the client's channels of distribution nationally – achieving fast, short-term sales increase and driving long-term brand loyalty.

The challenge

The telecommunications market is extremely competitive, and incentive programs are widespread. The key was to design one that would really stand out, motivating a total of 6 500 channel sales consultants, sales managers and dealer principals nationally.

A further challenge was driving a complex goal: to switch-sell overall, upsell to more advanced product models, and simultaneously focus on a more select range of products.

Our involvement

Achievement Awards Group designed a multi-faceted Channel Incentive Program for channel staff and management. There was one main guideline: pull out all the stops to engage and delight the program participants.

- The program kicked off with a high-voltage, multimedia launch with celebrity guests, live interactive performances, and dazzling prizes distributed in a lucky draw.
- Communications were relevant and entertaining: messages were short and sharp, using print and digital platforms suited to Generation Y program participants.
- Later, a fully interactive social networking tool was developed for participants, with an overwhelming response.
- Participants received AwardPoints™ (program reward currency) for completing product training.
- Product information podcasts were produced for easy web access.
- 10 000 high-end awards – including the client's own products – were selected for their emotional appeal to savvy, brand-conscious, tech-focused participants.
- Awards included group overseas trips to top destinations such as Brazil, Zanzibar, Spain (Barcelona) and China (the Beijing Olympics), amongst others.

Results

- Within a short period of time, the program funded itself entirely. Sales figures increased dramatically, in turn increasing the incentive budget and maintaining a positive Return on Investment (ROI).
- 53% increase in sales over target in a 6 month period
- Over five years, the client's market share increased from 5% to 29%
- Participants rated it as the best program of its kind, and the client used Achievement Awards Group's program as a benchmark for its programs internationally.
