Recognition & Reward Program

How it works

As a leadership tool, a strategic recognition system helps align employee performance to corporate values and objectives by reinforcing the behaviours and performance results that support your goals.

Our strategic recognition and rewards system helps nurture a positive corporate culture that motivates high performance, boosts employee engagement, and ultimately, gives you a competitive advantage.

Our strategic recognition and rewards framework ensures that recognition systems are designed and built to meet global best practices and corporate needs.

Our approach is multi-dimensional, strategically aligned, innovative, and based on behavioural and neuroleadership theory. We provide you with our international solutions tailored to your specific requirements.

Here’s how we create a best in class recognition and rewards system tailored to your needs

1. Define needs through a holistic assessment process
2. Define the business case to establish strategic goals and organisational and employee value on investment
3. Develop strategic recognition concept blueprint according to best practice recognition framework and principles
4. Establish steering committee and develop detailed solution scope of work
5. Build Recognition systems including:
   - Recognition modules and business rules including recognition criteria and measures, reward formulae, participation eligibility and recognition processes
   - Branding and communications system incorporating:
     • Program brand and identity
     • Pre-launch and launch plan to stimulate interest, enthusiasm and early participation
     • Strategic transactional and motivational communications plan
   - Leadership and learning system to build management recognition skills and educate participants
   - Events, celebrations and rewards system defining a blend of awards and rewards with intrinsic and extrinsic appeal
   - Technology and reporting system enables easy implementation and provides a single platform to manage, monitor and measure investment
   - Feedback and management system ensures program delivery excellence in three key areas: participant, operations and strategy

Recognition criteria specifically aligned to corporate values and goals. Ensures recognition is meaningful to individuals and achieves objectives.

Web-based nomination system is easy to use, encouraging active participation.

Strategic communications include informational and motivational messages to keep individuals focused on the recognition message.

Recognition training gives front-line managers the skill and confidence to deliver recognition, lead by example and fuel program success.

Automated IT systems provide real-time information and detailed reports. Easy to review progress and adjust strategy as necessary.

Employee Engagement & Motivation

You cannot move the engagement curve by only recognising an elite few (5 - 10% recognition reach). In order to reach a tipping point and create a culture of recognition, which impacts employee engagement, you need to reach and recognise as many people as possible (70 - 90%) as often as possible.
